AESF RESEARCH PROGRAM

The AESF Research Program began in 1919 when Dr. William Blum asked the Society to help fund research efforts of the National Bureau of Standards (now the National Institute of Science and Technology). This initial request paved the way for the expansion of the AESF Research Program in 1944 to support universities and colleges, industrial companies, and independent research centers and laboratories.

Research Projects Completed in 2006

1. University of South Carolina, "Development of New Process for Plating Thin Films of Zn-Ni-P-X, etc."
2. Pennsylvania State University, "Development of Environmentally Friendly Corrosion Prevention Deposit on Steel"
3. University of Cincinnati, "Improves Silane Film Performance by Electrodeposition"
4. McGill University, "Effective Material Characteristics and Surface Processing Variables on Hydrogen Embrittlement of Steel Fasteners"

THE JOURNAL OF APPLIED SURFACE FINISHING

The Journal of Applied Surface Finishing (JASF) contains technical papers similar to those traditionally published in P&SF while at the same time expanding the scope of papers to offer a forum for authors who wish to publish more scientific articles. Our goal is for this new journal to be a permanent resource for all who are interested in the engineering and science of applied surface finishing as well as a permanent part of the scientific literature and a critical library resource in universities and similar industrial sites.
